

So you want to date a tgirl

Femmestudios.com

So You Want to Date a Tgirl!

<http://www.femmestudios.com>

This short guide is for men who wish to date a tgirl. It's fairly short but to the point to help you avoid making the common mistakes. I've dated a lot of men and I can sort through 100s of propositions very quickly – it's amazing how easy men think tgirls are.

This is not a guide to teach you how to get a date or hook up – but it will help you approach tgirls in manner that will be more successful than what seems to be the normal approaches. So why is the Guide accurate? Well it's because I've dated men for a long time and I chat with men on line and I get emails from men but I only ever meet a few.

It's based on my experiences as well as confirming some of the approaches with other tgirls.

The Quick Answer!

So let's get something out of the way right up front – if you are looking for a quick sexual encounter then you may want to save yourself a lot of time by following this simple advice. Find an escort, they are beautiful, sexy, experienced and know how to give you your monies worth. The other option is to find a guy that's as horny as you and ask them to put on a dress. Those methods will be much easier than sending emails and chatting with tgirls online trying to convince them to have sex with you.

Also, if you are searching for a tgirl to “Top” you (give you anal) then you're going to be looking a long time. Most tgirls I know are “Bottoms” (receive anal) and have no interest in giving it. Again, if this is what you are looking for then you either need to find an escort or find away to star in a porn film. You may find someone that wants to do this but I think it would be the exception.

I thought it was fair just to get that part established before going any further. If you are not getting responses to your emails or your chats end abruptly then you may want to consider that the approach you are taking isn't working. Tgirls are special creatures and sometimes they can be a bit flakey – I know because I can seem very flakey at times.

That's not to say Tgirls don't like or enjoy sex. It's just to say that we don't want that to be the first part of any conversation. We would like to know more about you, why you are interested in us, and what you are looking for.

The Reality Is Not Pretty

Why is it so difficult to meet a tgirl? Or even find one to chat with on line? The reality is that it's simple equation of supply and demand. Think about this for a moment. Put a number in your mind of how many tgirls you think there are in the country. Now from that number knock off 50% right off the bat because most are already in relationships. Then from the remainder subtract another 50% to remove those that are strictly heterosexual. Now from that number subtract another 50% for those where there might actually be a mutual attraction. Then of those how many are local to you? Then determine the ratio of guys that have some desire to be with that remaining number – now look at that ratio of the two numbers. Mathematically, attractive tgirls can get sex pretty much whenever they want with a large number of guys to choose from. The reality is unfortunately the numbers are definitely not in your favor so you will have to do something very different than the average guy in order to stand out.

Doesn't matter what number you start with – the result is pretty small in the end; which means you have to be able to stand out from the crowd by offering something interesting and different. And let me tell you every guy has genitals so that's not a differentiator – I don't care what size or shape you are. Physical attributes are important – I'm not minimizing that – but what are you offering beyond that?

One of the ways to help stand out is not to ask the sex questions and start being interested in things she likes to do. Maybe think of something to do together that would interest her, get to know her a little. If you make her feel comfortable and like a person rather than a piece of meat you will definitely be in the minority of men. Maybe think of an interesting date or experience. Try to suggest an activity that might be daring, new and exciting. Could be as simple dinner and a movie – if the tgirl hasn't experienced doing those activities as a female she might find it interesting.

I realize that your desire to have a sexual encounter with one of us can be overwhelming, but if you ever want to experience this then you're going to have to treat us like you would a girl that you're interested in for a relationship. Most of us really aren't interested in a one night stand; not saying it won't happen – but set your expectations a little different and I guarantee you'll get what you want eventually.

The reality is as a tgirl we have a really wide range of choices so what would motivate us to pick you over the 100s of guys seeking out our attention.

The other reality that you need to understand is that we are not sex starved or easy as the porn industry would lead you to believe. If you have watched a lot of Shemale porn – that's exactly what it is. Think about it – even in straight porn – do real girls behave that way? Not usually. So keep that in mind as you chat with us on line or try to arrange a place to meet.

I also don't consider a date to be meeting someone in a hotel room or in the back seat of their car. I can't tell you how many men decide they want to meet me but then they don't actually want to go out anywhere. I can tell you I am already turned off if this happens; because even if they change their tune they've already given away what they want. Any illusion / delusion of romance and passion has been destroyed.

The bottom line is and not to be egotistical – it's just a matter of fact. Tgirls in general have their pick of guys. I can tell you most are not worth my time because they are all looking for that encounter. The guys I've found interesting were the ones that treated me nice. In fact I would even go so far to say that the ones I was interesting in being intimate weren't necessarily the most attracted men that had expressed interest in me. Our attraction is more like girls, we're more interested in the person than we are their physical characteristics. Now, a good physique doesn't hurt but it's probably number 2 or 3 on the list.

Common Mistakes

So what are the common mistakes that guys make? Well they make plenty, of course, why? Because they're guys I suppose. Here is a list of characteristics that I think many tgirls evaluate – the order of importance probably varies and not all tgirls will subscribe to all of these. But I thought I'd be as inclusive as I could so you could

1. Cheaters: Be single or in an open relationship where you are looking to date a tgirl. If you're a guy that's cheating on their spouse then you might do all of us a favor and just get a professional. None of us want to be the "other" woman or the target of an angry wife or domestic dispute. Also, lying about your relationship status is even worse. This is really easy to figure out – if a guy won't take me back to his place then I know something is up. It's that simple or if they don't want me to have their phone number etc. I know that being discrete may be a motivation but if someone is single, living alone – the risk is low. Especially if you've had a few dates to get to know someone.
2. Decency: Don't open a conversation with your sexual fantasy or what you want to do to us or what you want us to do to you. Believe me we've already heard it a million times before – your fantasy is not unique. Also realize that asking personal questions about sexual desires is an immediate turn off for most of us. It's not that we don't want to tell you these things we just may want to get to know you a little better first. The most popular opening line I get from guys is "are you a top or bottom"? Well, that's like asking a girl in your first IM – are you willing to give me a blow job. It's just offensive. If you're just looking for a hook up – you'd save yourself a lot of time and just ask – hey I'm looking to hook up are you interested. I can tell you the majority of answers you'll get is no – but if you play the numbers, then I'm sure you'll get a yes at some point; but just practice safe sex because if they respond that quickly remember they probably did the same with many other men.
3. Physical Attributes: We are not porn stars for the most part – we don't care what your member looks like, we may not even care what you look like if you have something nice to say. I've gone out with guys that most people would say were below average in looks. The reason is because they treated me like a princess and they were interested in things other than sex – in fact they made me wonder why they weren't making any moves so I began to do things to get their interest. You might try this – instead of having a picture of your cock on your profile or sending us a picture of it, you might try sending one of your chest and face that's what most of us are interested in.
4. Compliments: You have to be real careful with this one. We all love the compliments but those of us that are attractive and sexy - pretty much know it. It's good to say you notice but not necessarily to drool or continue to send praise and complements. We hear the compliments in emails and chats all day long. Instead of saying we're sexy, hot, etc. it's better to say something like "I'm really drawn to your smile, or eyes or whatever". Telling us that we make you hard is also probably not really necessary even though you might think we would be flattered. I guess some may be – but it's really not that difficult to get a horny guy hard so I don't see what all the hoopla is about.

5. Fakes: Don't lie, be dishonest or display photos that are not an accurate representation of you. Also don't alter your behavior – be you because it's eventually going to come out
6. Terminology: There are certain terms that are offensive to tgirls. Usually any label such as cross dresser, transvestite, transgendered, shemale etc. etc. can be offensive to one girl or another. It's best just to refer to our group as transgirls or tgirls or even better girls or gurls. Shemale comes from the pornography industry where boys have had breast implants to perform sex acts on film. Most of these men were gay to begin with and really still are in many ways.
7. Curiosity: If you are just curious to experiment then just let us know. Most of the time we're not interested in helping you out in this way. Again, probably better to seek out a professional to try out things and see if you like it.
8. Dom/Sub: Don't assume we are all little sissies and are submissive willing to bend to your whim. I find that most tgirls worth having are highly intelligent, in control and have faced a lot of challenges in their real life. Therefore, they are anything but submissive and vulnerable. Every girl likes to feel vulnerable with their guy but I think that comes much later in a relationship. Unless you're discussing things in the BDSM community probably best to stay away from this subject.
9. Top vs. Bottom: Most tgirls are bottoms so there's really no need to ask. A few tgirls don't even want their genitals touched or acknowledged. We are girls in many ways we want to be taken, we want to be receiving. If you are looking for a tgirl that's a top then you may want to look for a professional – they can definitely take care of this for you. I have never met a tgirl that has talked about how she just can't wait to top some guy – I'm sure they exist somewhere but I have never met anyone that wasn't a professional.
10. Functionality: You are definitely in the danger zone if you're asking whether we get hard, if we're horny, if you turn us on, or if we can cum and how much we produce. These questions just remind us of our masculinity and usually turn us off. Instead, why not find out by getting to know someone first and seeing what happens. Again the sure thing is always available for a price.
11. Spammers: If you have a standard opening, poetry or greeting and you spam it to every pretty tgirl you find online odds are it will not work. We get these all the time. I'm more interested if someone reads something in my profile and makes a comment on it. It shows that they were interested enough in finding out about me rather than the fact that I'm a sexual fantasy.
12. Language: A command of the English language or whichever is your primary language is a good indicator of intellect. Poor grammar, spelling mistakes or use of short words and slang usually is an indicator of someone that I probably won't be interested in meeting.

13. Discretion: Discretion is very important for everyone. Most of us are trying to blend in anyways. However that doesn't mean I'm going to be interested in a date where the guy is so nervous he doesn't want to be seen or associate with me in public. I'm also am not interested in hooking up in a parking lot, park, alley, restroom or hotel. If you're not willing to date, and then offer to take me back to your place then don't expect anything to happen.
14. Proposal: please don't offer a proposal or LTR offer in your initial conversation. I think all that comes from getting to know someone. I can't imagine anyone getting a note saying please marry me and have the tgirl say okay – without knowing anything. Also if you give away your intentions it takes any mystery out of the equation and it becomes a boring conversation very quickly. It may be valid to ask if we are interested in finding someone for ltr or marriage but be real subtle about such things. Otherwise you lose credibility pretty quickly.
15. Presentation: If you get a chance to meet, shower, shave, dress to impress. Remember tgirls love their clothes and they love to look pretty. They will definitely be sizing up how you put yourself together and how well groomed you are. It's just another indication of the effort you're willing to take for her.

What Tgirls Really Want

So that's a lot to remember, well not really but what is it that Tgirls really want. Well it's pretty simple we want a guy that is attractive, romantic without vulgarity, honest, genuine, and adores us as girls. It's really that simple. Basically there's a simple rule – if you were to walk up to a girl and introduce yourself what would you say? Would the first thing you tell her is that you're looking for a top? The point is we just want to be treated like you would your girlfriend or someone you would be interested in dating.

The amazing part is that you'll probably get more, and sooner from us, if you just treat us with a little dignity and respect. Just imagine being with us with your parents in the room what type of conversation would you have.

I'm not into expensive gifts or that sort of thing but a rose, or card or something thoughtful makes me think that the guy was thinking about me prior to me showing up. It also demonstrates the desire to go over and above to win me over.

We want a guy that is not just willing to be seen with us in public but is proud to be with us. It's easy to tell the difference. We want to have him hold our hand and make us feel okay, protected and that we can let down our guard and be a little vulnerable. We want you to gaze into our eyes and show us that you find us attractive and special. You can do that without saying it.

We want what biological girls want. We want to be swept off our feet, courted, romanced and made to feel special and desired. Once I started dating men it finally dawned on me why you often saw this hot chic with some homely guy. You wonder to yourself, he must be packing something or has lots of money etc. Those both may be true but it's probably more likely that he treats that girl like she is his whole life. He would do anything for her to make her feel special.

On the flip side, some girls take advantage of such men and that's crime as well. Girls that take a gift like that and then use it to hurt someone or to falsely represent themselves are not worth having. But alas, we're not talking about them are we.

The First Dates

So you've managed to get a date with a tgirl. How should you behave? What should you do? What should you talk about? Seems like there are so many land minds can you really be yourself? The key really is to be yourself and get in your mind that you're just going on a date with a girl. You may be wondering how far you can get her to go, which is probably natural, but try and keep things in check.

Taking the traditional role of the male on a date or courtship is probably not a bad idea. Opening doors, pulling out chairs, standing up when she excuses herself are all good examples. Letting her walk in front but guiding her with your palm on her lower back to let her know you are there. Some girls who may not have been out a lot may want you to walk in front of them – if you're not sure just ask. Maybe even holding her hand or letting her hang on your arm while you enter a venue. Anything that will remind her of her femininity and that she is the girl the female in the relationship will definitely make her feel more comfortable. Some tgirls however, may not want the whole girly thing over done – but it's still better to error on taking on a more traditional role. She'll let you know if you're over doing it.

The other key element to a successful date is to be in control with a plan. In other words, have a couple of options all worked out and then ask her which of a limited number of choices she would like. For example, if you are going to dinner have a couple of options picked out and offer them up. Or if you're going to see a movie, have a few options on what to go see. I love a guy that is confident and is in control but is willing to throw out different things to do and ask me what sounds like the most fun. Or even ask is there anything else that you would like to do. But, it's important to have a first choice, because if she says she doesn't care then just pick one and then confirm if that sounds good to her.

If you do this she will begin to assume a more feminine role and think of herself more like a girl therefore making her more receptive to future advancements. Then just read her, is she leaning forward, sitting close to you, is she looking at you or trying to get your attention. If so take a minor next step like touch her hand or put your arm around her waist and see if she moves in or tenses up. There are clear signs that are given off to let you know if you're moving too fast or if things are just right.

Conversation is very important and it's important that you take control of it. Most tgirls are insecure in the way they look so compliment her – and ask her about her. If she is not that engaging it's may not be because she has doesn't have a lot to say. It may be that she's self conscious about her voice, insecure about something else, concerned about the environment and how people perceive her. The best thing you can do in this situation is just make her feel beautiful and take control of the conversation. Just tell her a story of something interesting that happened to you. Your stories and conversation must be interesting, relevant and not pointless or boring. Ask her questions about herself that aren't sexual in nature, or tgirl related or anything else. Just ask her what she did last weekend, what her interests are just like you would any other girl. She'll volunteer all her secrets when she's ready and comfortable to talk about them. If she opens the conversation on such topics its fine to ask follow on questions.

Be the gentlemen first and let her lead you and guide you to the next steps. Nothing may happen on the first date but then again it might – let that be her choice. Let her chase you a little. Show interest without being obvious – let her know that if she decides to give herself to you that you're not going to deny her. On the flip side don't start every sentence about what you'd like to do to her in bed. Talking about your sexual escapades, your virility, or interests in this area can either be intimidating or offensive in most cases.

Sexuality

So after harping on not talking about sex – here we are talking about it. Well, most of us enjoy sex we just don't want it to be the initial topic of conversation. We also like to believe we have more value than just a sex toy or fantasy. But there are some key things about sexuality with a tgirl that you need to understand. This is placed here not as erotica but to discuss the physical differences between tgirls and biological girls.

So after a few dates or maybe you are a smooth operator and you think you're getting lucky on the first date. In any event realize that your tgirl is probably experiencing a lot of anxiety about this and not for the reasons you might think.

The best thing to do is to start real slow. Maybe start with some wine – let her relax and get into the zone a little. Maybe start by touching her hand or thigh. Maybe kiss her on the neck or elsewhere, just not the lips at first. Maybe let her make the first sexual advance – be patient and enjoy the experience and anticipation.

If she's never done this before she may first be concerned about your size. She also maybe wondering if she'll do things correctly. Will she use the right motions to satisfy you? Is it going to hurt? Or will she be able to take all of you. If she is pre-operative and on hormones she may not be very functional but won't want to disappoint you. If she's post-operative she may be concerned about taking all of you or concerned about how large you are. These are all concerns that she may be having and could lead to anxiety or nervous behavior.

The key here is to take things slow, use lots of lubrication, practice safe sex and make her feel at ease. Whatever you decide to do together doesn't just go at it too hard and fast right away. Let her get used your size and take your time. She'll know right away how much she can do and will probably let you know. Also keep in mind we bend differently the biological girls so not every position may be possible but there are always exceptions.

Make sure you are clean with good hygiene. If you need to take a minute to go to the restroom to freshen things up then do so. She may want to do the same. Brushing teeth, mouth wash, having clean gentiles is important so that your partner can enjoy pleasing you.

Am I Gay?

Are you gay because you want to be with a tgirl? I don't know, maybe. At the very least you're bisexual by definition of the term. I know a lot of guys struggling with this. Many will say they are only attracted to girls and tgirls. For some reason they want that to mean they are not gay. Not sure why that matters so much. We are what we are however we want to label it.

Some will argue you are not bisexual or gay and that's just not correct just simply by the definition of bisexuality. So just accept the fact that you like tgirls and you may want to touch their gentiles or you may not – it doesn't matter if you are performing sexual activities with a biological guy then at the very least you are bisexual.

But what if she transitions and is no longer a man – does that make you Gay or bisexual. That would be a poser for sure. If you go by biological chemistry then yes, but if you go by physical anatomy then maybe not. This would be an interesting study to define the terms in that context.

Conclusion

Be yourself and be fun and enjoy your girl. If you treat her with dignity and respect then you will be surprised on how desirable you will become to her. If you have any questions, or have issue with anything please let me know – just send me an email nikkits4@yahoo.com